INGERSOLL ON SHAKESPEARE.
If Shakespeare knew one fact, he knew its kindred and its neighbors. Looking at a coat of mail he instantly imagined the society, the conditions that produced it, and what it in turn produced. He saw the castle, the moat, the drawbridge, the lady in the tower, and the knightly lord spurring across the plain. He saw the bold baron and the subtle retainer, the trampled serf and all the glory and grief of feudal life. He was a man of imagination. He lived the life of all.
He was a citizen of Athens in the days of Pericles. He listened to the eager eloquence of the great orators, and sat upon the cliffs, and with the tragic poet heard "the multitudinous laughter of the sea." He saw Socrates thrust the spear of question through the heart of falsehood. He was present when the great man drank hemlock, and met the night of death, tranquil as a star meets morning. He listened to the peripatetic philosophers, and was unpuzzed by the sophists. He watched Phidias as he chiseled shapes of stone to forms of love and awe.
He lived by the mysterious Nile, amid the vast and monstrous. He knew the very thought that wrought the form and features of the Sphinx. He heard great Memnon's morning song when marble lips were smitten by the sun. He laid him down with the embalmed and waiting dead, and felt within their dust the expectation of another life, mingled with cold and suffocating doubts—the children born of long delay.
He walked the ways of mighty Rome and saw great Caesar with his legions in the field. He stood with vast and motley throngs and watched the triumph given to victorious men, followed by crowned kings, captured hosts, and all the spoils of ruthless war. He heard the shout that shook the Coliseum's roofless walls, when from the reeling gladiator's hand the short sword fell, while from his bosom gushed the stream of wasted life.
He lived the life of savage men. He trod the forest's silent depths, and in the desperate game of life or death he matched his thought against the instinct of the beast.
He knew all crimes and all regrets, all virtues and their rewards. He was victim and victor, pursuer and pursued, outcast and king. He heard the applause and curses of the world, and on his heart had fallen all the nights and none of failure and success.
He knew the unspoken thoughts, the dumb desires, the wants and ways of beasts. He felt the crouching tiger's thrill, the terror of the ambushed prey, and with the eagles he had shared the ecstasy of flight and poise and swoop, and he had lain with sluggish serpents on the barren rocks uncoiling slowly in the heart of noon.
He sat beneath the bo-tree's contemplative shade, wrapped in Buddha's mighty thought, and dreamed all dreams that light, the alchemist, has wrought from dust and dew, and stored within the slumberous poppy's subtle blood.
He knelt with awe and dread at every shrine—he offered every sacrifice and every prayer—felt the consolation and the shuddering fear—mocked and worshipped all the gods—enjoyed all heavens, and felt the pangs of every hell.
He lived all lives and through his blood and brain there crept the shadow and the chill of every death, and his soul, like Macbeth's, was lashed naked to the wild horse of every fear and love and hate.
The imagination had a stage in Shakespeare's brain, whereon sat all scenes that lie between the morn of laughter and the night of tears, and where his players bodied forth the false and true, the joys and griefs, the careless shallows and the tragic depths of universal life.
From Shakespeare's brain there poured a Niagara of gems spanned by fancy's seven-hued arch. He was many-sided as clouds are many-formed. To him giving was hoarding—sowing was harvesting—and waste itself the source of wealth. Within his marvelous mind were the fruits of all thought past, the seeds of all to be. As a drop of dew contains the image of the earth and sky so all there is of life was mirrored forth in Shakespeare's brain.
Shakespeare was an intellectual ocean, whose waves touched all the shores of thought; within which were all the tides and waves of destiny and will; over which swept all the storms of fate, ambition and revenge; upon which fell the gloom and darkness of despair and death, and all the sunlight of content and love, and within was the inverted sky, lit with the eternal stars. Shakespeare was an intellectual ocean, toward which all rivers ran, and from which none the isles and continents of thought receive their dew and rain.

Woman's Perfect Health
can not be maintained without the greatest care. From childhood to old age it should be guarded jealously—by parents—husband—loving friends.
Have something always at hand! Something that will strengthen—invigorate—cure at critical times.
Brown's Iron Bitters
has been woman's friend for twenty years—it never fails—it does give the much needed strength—enriches the blood—tones the nerves.
Are you a woman? Then remember that you can (after all else fails) fall back on Brown's Iron Bitters with certainty of cure. It is a comforting thought—has been comforting to many—may it prove so to you!
Look for crossed Red lines on wrapper.
Miss JOSIE BEEMAN, Bath, N. Y., says: "I was a great sufferer from general female weakness. Brown's Iron Bitters has given me great relief."
BROWN CHEMICAL CO. BALTO MD.

DIRECTIONS FOR USING CREAM BALM.
Apply a particle of the Balm well up into the nostrils. After a moment draw a strong breath through the nose. Use three times a day, after meals preferred, and before retiring.
ELY'S CREAM COLD IN HEAD BALM opens and cures the Nasal Passages, Allays Pain and Inflammation, Heals the Sores, Protects the Membrane from Colds, Restores the Senses of Taste and Smell. The Balm is quickly absorbed and gives relief at once. Price 50 cents at Druggists or by mail.

FLOUR.
One day Yankee-doodle-doo
Went strolling forth to view
All this glorious country 'neath
The stars and stripes.
He compared the Southern grain
With that raised on Western plain,
And he says each section
Has its types.
And the people of each State
Should no longer differ
But should eat wheat grown and ground
At their own door.
For "TENNEY'S FAMILY BEST"
OUR NEW SOUTH" in such request
Are the best that any man
Can place in store.
So aloft o'er TENNEY'S MILL
Go and look, it stands there still,
He placed a broom, the straw end
Up in air.
"For," said he, "they sweep the deck,
And no rival e'er shall check
Their career, for all their acts are Fair and square."
